

Geriatric Medicine Seminar Series 2025
PAH Medical Grand Rounds

Geriatric Medicine on the Frontline

With an ageing population and an increased prevalence of multimorbidity, healthcare settings must adapt to meet evolving needs. This seminar will focus on the role of geriatric medicine in the emergency department. Join us to explore the latest advancements and best practices for enhancing patient care for old and/or frail patients in high-pressure settings.

Speakers

Professor Kenneth Rockwood

Professor Rockwood is a world-renowned geriatrician and researcher, widely recognised for his pioneering work in frailty and ageing. As a leading expert in the field, he has contributed extensively to understanding frailty, risk management, and improving patient outcomes in healthcare settings. His innovative approaches have shaped practices worldwide.

Dr Denise Hobson

Denise Hobson is a senior general physician and geriatrician in the Emergency Department at the Princess Alexandra Hospital, with experience in the care of older people across the interface of the primary, residential, and acute care sectors.

 Date: Monday 24 February 2025

 Time: 12:00 – 13:00 AEST (Brisbane)

 Online: Teams webinar

 Registration: Click here

The Australian Frailty Network (AFN), the Queensland Dementia, Ageing and Frailty Clinical Network (QDAF), and the Princess Alexandra Hospital (PAH) present this session as part of the PAH Medical Grand Rounds.

Clinical Excellence
Queensland

Queensland
Government

Queensland
Government

Princess Alexandra
Hospital
BRISBANE • AUSTRALIA